

Taking the pain out of the Family Law and superannuation regime

From 28 December 2002, married couples who separate will be able to divide superannuation entitlements as part of the overall property settlement. This regime will have a significant impact on the superannuation industry and will require trustees and administrators to develop new compliance systems.

We have developed a kit to help trustees of superannuation funds and superannuation fund administrators take some of the pain away in meeting the obligations under this new regime. The Kit is a CD-ROM containing an integrated version of the legislation, as well as checklists and sample correspondence to help get you started.

Details of how to order are on the other side of this sheet.
